

Protect YOUR privacy from Military recruiters!

While the war on Iraq has already claimed the lives of over 3,200 young Americans, the Bush Administration has found a new "hotspot" for the U.S. military to occupy: our nation's schools! Constant war needs new troops to keep it going and military recruiters are desperate to meet their recruitment quotas by any means.

From the growing presence of military recruiters in classrooms and cafeterias to schools' widespread use of standardized military testing (ASVAB) and the growth of expensive and deceptive campaigns like "Military Adventure Tours" that glorify war to elementary students, the Pentagon is deeply invested in selling militarism to youth.

The federal "No Child Left Behind Act" forces schools across the country to give military recruiters special access to students' personal information in exchange for much needed school funding! As students we must stop this!

Sign on as a supporter of HR 1346, the Student Privacy Protection Act of 2007, introduced by Rep. Mike Honda (CA). This bill would protect a student's personal information unless the student specifically chooses to share it with military recruiters. Most members of Congress are unaware of this problem, so please sign below and call upon your Representative to co-sponsor HR 1346!
